The third in our popular online conference series, hosted by the International Institute for Psychiatric Drug Withdrawal.

The conference will look at the history of withdrawal projects over the past three decades, the current situation in the UK with regards to safe deprescribing services, and possible directions for future progress.

The conference will also look at deprescribing in primary care for patients, GPs and pharmacists, including practical suggestions for approaching withdrawal in the here and now.

And, it will look at how to build support outside of mainstream health services and make it accessible to all, including creative ways to talk about and survive psychiatric drug withdrawal.

Whether you or a loved one is taking psychiatric drugs or you work with people in psychiatric drug withdrawal, this conference offers practical learning and bigger-picture reflections in a fast-developing field.
